MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

FRENCH OPERA AT THE STANDARD.

In view of the operatic attractions elsewhere, ft is not surprising that a slim audience greeted the presentation of Lecocy's "Le Cœur et la Main" at the Standard Theatre on Monday night by Maurice Grau's French Company. Mile. Jeanne Fouquet, from the Grand Opera, Paris, took the part of Michaela, it being her first appearance here. She was well received, but petther her voice nor her acting will reconcile the public to the loss of the vivacious and pretty prima donna who has chosen to east her lines in Texas latitudes. There was nothing to complain of in the way of costuming and the scenic effects possessed some merit. But any success of "Heart and Hand" will rest upon the motive and spirit of Lecocq's music-not upon the dramatic or vocal interpretation of the opera.

Last night the opera was given again for the benefit of the Belgian Benevolent Society. To-night the first performance this season of "La Jolie Parfumeuse" will take place, with Mile. Aimée as Rose Michon, Mile. Angele as Barolet, and Mile. Fouquet as Cloriede. Mile. Aimée will revive pleasant memories by singing "Pretty as a Picture." "Le Cœur et la Main" will be repeated to-morrow afternoon, and the season will close at night with "Les Cloches de Corneville."

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC NOTES. The principal singers of Mr. Grau's French company will take part in the concert at the Casino next Bunday night.

A new comic opera by Ernst Catenhusen, entitled "Lieutenant Celene of the Guard," was given at the new Arch Street Opera House, in Philadelphia, last night. Mr. George Vandenhoff, the veteran actor, reader and teacher, has lately returned to New-York, af ter a sojourn of two years in Eugland; and he purposes soon to reappear in the lecture-room.

Miss Fanny Davenport has been so prosperous in Fedora that Mr. Colville has sought and obtained an extension of her engagement, and she will remain three weeks longer at the Fourteenth Street Theatre. After Mr. D. H. Harkins has revealed himself as Richelieu, at the Twenty-third Street Theatre, Mr-Albert Eaves, the manager of that house, will invest him self in canonicals and come forward in the same part. This stage was Salmi Morse's legacy. The organ in the Academy of Music, built by

The closing contest was between Young Turnbull and John Dempsey, of Brooklyn, announced to fight four three-minute rounds, Marquis of Queensbury rules. The contest was exciting. Turnbull struck the cloanest blows, but he did not possess the stamina of his opponent. Seven rounds were fought, when the fight was stopped. Dempsey had the best of his antagonist in the first three rounds, but the hardest hitting was done by Turnbull, and the fight was declared a draw.

HONORS TO LORD COLERIDGE

A RECEPTION AT THE UNION LEAGUE. SHORT SPEECHES BY THE LORD CHIEF-JUSTICE AND MR, EVARTS.

A reception was given last evening to Lord Chief-Justice Coleridge by the Union League Club. The occasion was of unusual interest, as it was the last gathering at which Lord Coleridge will appear before returning to England. It was about 9 p. m. when the guest of the evening arrived, accompanied by Elliott F. Shepard. A large company had assembled in the club rooms, and as Lord Cole-ridge came in they parted to allow him to pass, while Bernstein's orchestra struck up "God Save the Queen." William M. Evarts, the president of the club, and Joseph H. Choate escorted the distinguished Englishman through the rooms on the first floor, and then to the art gallery, where a number of paintings had been hung for the occasion. As the trio moved through the rooms the crowd surged after them, Lord Coleridge continually recognizing friends and reaching out his hand as he passed. The guest was soon escorted to the platform of the theatre, around him being grouped Judge Noah Davis, Thomas C. Acton, James C. Carter, Joseph H. Choate, John Jay and Albon P. Man. The chairs had been taken from the room, which was closely packed with men, standing, who greeted Lord Coleridge with hearty applause. Mr. Evarts's humorous sallies and Lord Coleridge's feeling remarks were keenly appreciated.

MR. EVARTS'S REMARKS. Mr. Evarts addressed his remarks to Lord

Coleridge, and spoke as follows:

When the people in this country learned that you had accepted an invitation to visit this country they knew that the judiciary and the members of the legal profession might have special reasons to be gratified, but it was impossible that one occupying so great a place in the establishment of justice in England should remain the guest of only a class of the people. You may be expected here this evening to say a few words as regards any opinion or judgment which you may have formed of us during the two months you have spent in the country. This judgment may be a divided one. If, however, you have formed of us during the two months you have spent in the country. This judgment may be a divided one. If, however, you have formed an unfavorable judgment, we do not expect to hear of it to-night. Our faults can be seen 3,000 miles off; as a modest, retiring people our public and private virtues need to be closely inspected to be seen. And yet when you return to your country I hope that you will have seen views of this country and its life which will seen wholesome and worthy to be applianded. One thing that must have struck you is our faculty of speech. We are a nation of crators, and whoever happens to be speaking is for the time being the best orator in the country. I hope you will regard this country as worthy being invited to. Coleridge, and spoke as follows:

HOW LORD COLERIDGE SPENT THE DAY.

A VISIT TO THE HOUSE OF REPUGE. Lord Coleridge accompanied by Elliott F. Shepard and Lioutenant McClellan, of the United States Army, yesterday paid a visit to the House of Refuge on Randall's Island. The party was shown through the va-rious departments by A. McL. Agnew and F. H. Fay, of the Board of Trustees, Superintendent H. Jones and the Rev. W. Steel, chaplain of the House os Refuge. The inmates of the inststution, numbering over 800, with their officers and teachers, assembled at noon in the chapel and were there addressed by Lord Coleridge. He expressed deep interest in all he had seen, and extreme gratification at the successful manner in which the work of the institution appeared to be carried on. He was humiliated by the thought that in his own dear England there was no similar institution. In the discharge of his duties as a magistrate he had often been called on to pass sentence on children. In so doing he had been saddened by the thought that he was consigning the children to places where much harm would be done them by association with repulsive forms of vice and crime. His heart would be much lighter at such times if he could send the children to some such institution as the House of Refuge, where some amends would be made to them for the neglect of society, and where they might be trained to become good men and women, so that they need not fear to look any honest men, even the greatest men, in the face. He told the children they should remember that they were not there to be punished, but to learn how to use their hands and brains member that they were not there to be punished, but to learn how to use their hands and brains so that when they left the place they might acquire good positions in this great country—as some of the former immates had already done. They might indulge in unbounded hope which was so much denied to the people of the Old World. The Lord Chief Justice's benigmant manner and touching words pleased the children much.

In the afternoon Lord Coleridge visited the Bible House and expressed much interest in the general work of the American Bible Society. He also visited the Astor Library and Charles Scribner's Sons' publishing house. In the evening Lord Coleridge dined with William H. Vanderbill. Henry Irving was one of the guests.

To-day Lord Coleridge will pay a visit to Yale College. The Supreme Court of Vermont in General Term at Montpeller and the bench and bar of the State sent a dispatch to William M. Evarts on Tuesday asking him to convey to Lord Coleridge their cordial greeting, their high appreciation of his personal character, their admiration for his eminent judicial qualities, their grafting their high appreciation of his personal character, their admiration for his eminent judicial qualities, their graftification at his visit has been satisfactory and agreeable to him, and their wish that he may have a safe return voyage to England and "long live to fill and adoru his exalted station." The di*patch was signed by Houser E. Royce, Chief Justice of Vermont, and Lake P. Poland, chafman of the Committee of the Bar. On Wednesday Lord Coleridge sent a reply. He expressed his gratitude for the kind wishes contained in the message. The kind and generous words, he said, were one more convincing proof, if proof were necessary, of the cordial feeling which binds the legal profession into one. He also expressed his delight at finding on his landing in this country that this feeling was so strong in America, and he hoped that his visit had done nothing to weaken it.

WEDDINGS YESTERDAY.

Miss Queenie Howell, a daughter of Nathaniel W. Howell, was married to William Dwight Gilbert, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, at noon yesterday, in the Church of the Redeemer, Brooklyn, by the Rev. Dr. Van De Water, of St. Luke's Church, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Treat, the Rector. Edward Gilbert, the groom's brother, was the best man. The ushers were Antoine Hodenpyle and William McCay, of Grand Bapids, N. W. Howell, jr., and Banjamin F. Aske, of Stonington. The bride wore a travelling dress of olive-green silk with a skirt of old gold plush embossed in olive-green velvet, and a bonnet to match the dress. There was no reception. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert will live in Grand Rapids. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Gilbert, parents of the groom; Miss Kate Gilbert, his sister; Miss Hodenpyle and Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Fuller, all of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. Beatty, Miss Georgie and Miss Kittle

Two bundred dealers have joined the Union and adopted its prices. William Murphy said that he had heard that The Herold would establish a number of stands in Williamsburg, and that a distributing office for the Herald would be opened this morning at Broadway and Fourth-st. A committee was produted to wall on the Mayor with regard to the matter. There has been considerable farmor expended on this Herald news-stands controversy, but I tell you this thing s getting serious. Within the past week two different have disappeared. Now whether they have gone to an starved to death or are simply missing, I don't know but some attention should be paid to it by the police somebody else." So spoke an independent newsdealer at "For several days after The Herald advertised that one of its new stands was located here," the dealer continued, "we saw nothing of it, though we searched the grocery store, the two liquor stores and the butcher's shop. Then one morning a thing looking like a child's toy-table appeared with a few papers on it. The man danced around with his bands in his pockets for two mornings and minaged to keep warm and the last I saw of him he was trudging off with his bundle under his arm as he remarked, 'well. I'm glad these papers are returns ble, for I'm near starved as well as disgusted, 'To—with The Heruid,' Then the stand was missing until Sunday morning when a new man appeared. Yesterday morning he disappeared, exclaiming 'Pm through, I'd Just as soon they had staid, for it did not hurt my circulation."

SUFFOCATING HIMSELF WITH GAS.

R. C. Burrhus, age about sixty, a guest at Everett's Hotel in Barclay st., committed suicide yester day afternoon. He had been a guest at the hotel sine September 15. Iustead of sitting around the office and talking with the guests, he remained in his room and was rarely ever seen, except in the dining-room. As he made no offer to settle his bill at the end of the third week, made no offer to settle his bill at the end of the third week, the elerk sent him a note teiling him that he must settle at once, of waten he toox no notice. About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon a servant tried to open the door with a skeleton key, but found it bolted on the inside. She pashed open the transon and was almost overpowered by the gas withch rushed out into the hallway. Mr. Everett was called and entering the room found Mr. Burrhus lying dead in bed. Both stop cocks of the chandeller above his head were open and the windows in the room were ligally closed. Under one show of the dead man was found an open Bible. Upon a table standing near the bed lay a scaled envelope addressed to Mrs. E. C. Burrhus, No. 2204 Fourteentiest. Washington. The body was taken to the store of D. Mooney & Sons, undertakers, at No. 95 Green wich-st. A guest at the hotel said that Mr. Burrhus was a politician, who had come to this city for the purpose of obtaining a position in the Custom House, but had been unsuccessful. The fact that no money was found in his possession has led to the belief that Mr. Burrius committed suicide because of poverty and disappointment.

ETHAN ALLEN'S REPUBLICANISM.

AN INTERESTING TALK WITH THE CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR IN THE XTH DISTRICT.

At the Republican Senate Convention for the Xth District on Monday, Colonel Ethan Allen was nominated. There being some doubt expressed as to his Republican orthodoxy, a reporter of THE TRIBUNE called on him last night and asked Mr. Alien if he had always been a Republican.
"I began my Republican career," replied Mr. Allen, when Mr. Lincoln, in 1861, appointed me as Assistant United States Attorney, under Delafield Smith, which office I held until 1869, when I resigned. That is the only office I ever held. In 1868 I stumped three States, New-York being one of them, making eighty speeches for Grant, the service being a voluntary one on my part; I paid my own expenses. In 1872 it is of course well understood that I sustained the cause of Horace Greeley, whom I regarded as the father and the founder of tse Republican party. In 1876, as chairman of the Liberal National Committee, I was empowered to annul the call for an Independent convention to nominate a President, if in my judgment the Republican or Democratic nominees then to be nominated conformed to ilberal ideas. Hayes and Tilden were subsequently nominated, and in the name of the Liberal party I approved Hayes and abandoned the Liberal organization. In 1880 I was in Europe at the time of the Republican Convention, and in September of that year I left my family in Paris, crossed the ocean to speak for Garfield and Arthur-my speeches being already family in Paris, crossed the ocean to speak for Garfield and Arthur—my speeches being circulated as campaign documents—and later I voted for them and then returned to Europe to complete my visit; having travelled 6,000 miles to east a Republican vote."

"What are your chances of election!"

"The election is a certainty if the Republicans will only register, but my district is one in which it is somewhat difficult to get voters to the polis. It begins at Eighth-ave, and Thirtieth-st., running east to Thirdave, north to Eighty-sixth-st., then east to the river, and north and northwest till it reaches Eighth-ave."

"One of the issues in your election, it is said, will be the Five Cent Fare bill. How do you stand on that question!"

Five Cent Fare bill. How do you stand on that the tion?

"I should at all times favor the lowest possible rate, whether 5 cents or even less, for fare on any city railroad, provided it is according to law to enforce any such measure, but I should refrain from playing the mere demagogue by advocating that which I knew to be illegal and impossible, merely to make cheap popularity."

"Will Mr. Crane and his friends support you, since you defeated him for the Senatorial nominations?

"Mr. Crane, called at my office to-day to assure me that he and his friends would do all in their power to secure my election."

y election."
"Have you been put under any obligations in case you explored!"

"Have you been put under any obligations at each you are elected?"

"None whatever. I am as independent as a nominee as I have been as a private citizen."

"To what do you attribute your nomination?"

"To a desire on the part of the regulars to nominate an outspoken independent for the purpose of presenting that harmony in the parity which it was supposed such a nomination would infuse; it is also the natural outgrowth of a desire to reorganize the party according to the plans hald down by the Committee of Eighteen and the Central Committee."

On the motion of one of Mr. Doener's supporters, who piedged the support of the defeated candidate, the nomination of Mr. Mulvaney was made unanimous. Mr. Mulvaney appeared before the Convention. The successful and defeated candidates were cach given three cheers and a "tiger." Apparently harmony reigned and the friends of Milvaney called loadly for a speech from Dooner, who appeared reticeut to speak. He was finally prevailed upon, however, and said: "Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I am still a candidate, independent of Mr. Mulvaney." # NOTES OF THE CANVASS.

The Young Men's Republican Association of the XXIIId Assembly District held a regular monthly meeting last night at No. 2,203 Third-ave. Benjamin

To Hon. Mannister Worts, Oscopo, N. F.:
Thanks for your action in withdrawing from the Senatorial contest in XXIst District. It is an evidence of the subordination of personal interest to the welfare of the Republican party which animates all Republicans throughout the State, and your desire to make that unity complete wents the warmest convenience of this concomplete merits the warmest commendation of this committee.

JAMES D. WARREN, Chairman.

REPUBLICAN PROSPECTS GOOD,

This being the third day of registration in the city, extra efforts will be made by the various political organizations to bring their friends out. All hope of harmony in the Senate districts having vanished, the Democratic leaders are preparing for bitter fight. County Democracy leaders are expressing fears that they have made a mistake in precipitating the contest, as the probabilities now are that the Republicans will elect three enators, Irving Hall one, and Tammany three.

The nomination of James O'Brien for Register has also alarmed the friends of John Reilly. Mr. O'Brien is a skilful Democratic leader with greater ability than Reilly, and the friends of the latter fear to try conclusions with O'Brien. Efforts are still being made by the County Democracy for "deals" on Aldermen and Assemblymen, but the prospects of success are not good.

CANAL MISMANAGEMENT.

ATTEMPT OF GOVERNOR CLEVELAND TO DEFEND SUPERINTENDENT SHANAHAN.

FULTONVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 25,-The recent denunciation of Superintendent Shanahan by the canal boatmen for his neglect to keep the Eric Canal in a navigable condition seems to be worrying the Democratic State Committee, and also Governor Cleveland, the head of the Democratic party. With a view of preparing some defence of the canal management, apparently, the three Democratic Judges of the Court of Claims have just started out from Buffalo in a tug, intending to make a journey along the Eric Canal. Captain M. De Puy, a canal boatman, is determined that the public shall know the condition of the canals before the "whitewashing" report is published.
To-day he issued the following statement:

Governor Cleveland has sent a party of gentlemen on a tig from Buffalo to inspect the Eric Canal, but before they started the programme was published in The Buffalo Courier, which paper is taken all along the canal. Of course they will flad the locktenders all attending to their business, and the levels will be kept full for this special occasion.

Andrew Coats presided and Charles Diamond acfed as secretary. John E. Brodsky was nominated for Senator by acclamation. He came before the convention and accepted the nomination. Mr. Brodsky was born in this city on May 30, 1855. He was educated in the public schools and was graduated from Columbia Law School in 1876. Since then he has been engaged in the practice of law. He was a member of the Assembly in 1880, 1881, and 1882, and last year he ran for Congress against ex-Licutenant-Governor Dorsh eimer by whom he was defeated.

THE GRACIE BEATEN BY THE FANNY, BOTH YACHTS WELL HANDLED-A LIGHT BREEZE

AND A SMOOTH SEA.

Light winds and a comparatively smooth sea marked the much-talked-of and long-deferred race between the sloop yachts Gracie and Fanny yesterday. An attempt, it will be remembered, was made to sail the race on October 9, but it falled for lack of wind. The race was barely made yesterday within the eight hours allowed, and rethe victory of the Fanny by 4 minutes 53 seconds actual time and 8 minutes 14 seconds corrected time. The race was for $1,000 a side. There were many outside bets, and it is said that $25,000 changed hands on the result of the

HINDOO CHILD WIVES.

P. C. Mozoomdar, the Brahmin who is lecturing in various city churches this week on "Life in India," spoke in the Broadway Tabernaele, at Broadway and Thirty-fourth-st., last night. The church was well filled, and the audience listened with close attention to the foreigner, who was introduced by Dr. Taylor, the pastor of the church. In speaking of the education in India, supported by the Government, Mr. Mozoomdar said that it was wholly secular, no professed follower of any religious sect being allowed to teach in the schools, any religious sect being allowed to teach in the schools, while agnostics, sceptics and infidels were freely employed. Referring to the Hindoo women the speaker said in substance:

"A little Hindoo girl is as sweet and pretty as any American girl, but at the age of six years her parents become anxious about her, at seven her parents become more auxious, the auxiety increasing until at the age of ten it reaches its crisis. The ambition of the parents then is to make as profitable a match as possible. She is usually married then, though she may live at home a year or two longer. Then, as frequently happens, her boy-husband dies and the widow of eleven years must remain a widow forever. Something must be done to prevent these early marriaces and to help these miserable little widows. I do not believe in a woman riding a bleyele nor dancing on a tight-rope, nor do I believe in the 'girl of the period,' but I admire the woman of worship and the woman of affection."
